Business Description: The Wilson Daily Times celebrated its 100th anniversary Feb. 18, 1996, with a gala celebration and open house. From humble beginnings in a building on an alley behind the county courthouse, the Daily Times had overcome competitors and become one of the few surviving family-owned daily newspapers in North Carolina. A year later, the newspaper leaped off the printed page onto the Internet's World Wide Web at wilsondaily.com. The Wilson Times Company has evolved since it's P.D. Gold Publishing Co. days when it printed The Wilson Daily Times (1902) two editions daily, The Wilson Times – Tuesday and Friday – (1896) and Zions Landmark (1867) semi-monthly. It also had first-class commercial job printing, book and catalogue work plus ruling and bonding. Now, the Wilson Times Co. prints The Wilson Times, has wilsonsimes.com, The Wilson County Phone Directory, Money Mailer, Xpress Marketing and continues the Gold Press tradition of publishing books.
